To whom it may concern:

It is my good pleasure to present to you this letter of reference for Sandra Warmoth. I have known Sandra in a personal and a professional capacity since 1990, and without reservation, I can attest to her honorable character and professionalism.

A Minister of G-d's Word, Sandra is diligent in fostering understanding between the Jewish and Christian communities. Over the years, she has opened her home to offer hospitality, to enhearten those in need of encouragement and comfort, to teach the Bible, and to provide guidance. Sandra is a living example of G-d's Word in deed.

A conscientious and capable journalist, Sandra stands at the ready to contribute her talents to further noble causes. Sandra was approached to help build and launch an important religious-educational project for The Nir College of Judaic Studies in Israel. She rose to the occasion and volunteered several years of her time to the project, creating a tax-exempt mission and its operations, and promoting it internationally. I recall how Sandra took great care in researching historical and religious information for her programs, newsletters, and teachings, and I was pleased to give her access to my personal library and to allow her to tap into my scholarship for this sizeable undertaking. During this busy period, Sandra was asked to launch an emergency fund-raiser for an Israeli woman with a life-threatening condition, who required surgery in the United States. With little time to spare, we poured over the medical documents, which contained conflicting information from two countries and material lacking translation from the Hebrew. We were able to clearly identify the woman's condition, which Sandra cross-checked with another source. With precision accuracy, and under an unforgiving deadline, Sandra wrote and disseminated compelling press releases describing the critical nature of the emergency. She worked in concert with a team in Israel, and they raised ample funds to cover the surgery and travel expenses. Sandra obtained assistance for the woman's family while in the States, and provided patient progress reports to Rabbis, Pastors, and others. Upon returning home after having undergone multiple operations, the woman was greeted by uplifting cards and letters that Sandra collected and forwarded to Israel.

Sandra's perception is as sharp as her journalistic capability. Before it became fashionable, Sandra was educating others regarding the global revolutionary aims of Islam. After researching this complex subject, and carefully cross-checking the information with my own material and with other sources, Sandra wrote an in-depth report on Islamic terrorism and sent it to Capitol Hill and to the White House during President Clinton's Administration. I examined this report from a scholarly standpoint, and it was one of the most thorough that I had read on the subject at that time. Her emphatic message to our decision makers then was that America was unprepared for the Wahhabi-style terrorism that was advancing on the horizon. Sandra advised that there can be no compromising with Islamists, and that this type of terrorism posed a clear and present danger to civilized society. Today, Sandra continues to write reports and letters addressing this decisive issue.

In all, I would have to say that Sandra is a competent professional with a genuine heart for people, a passion for G-d, and a love for her country. Her zeal and earnestness are refreshing, and her integrity is unquestionable.

To have Sandra on your team would be nothing short of an asset.

If you would like to telephone me to answer any questions, I would be more than happy to oblige.

Yours very truly,

Irving Teitelbaum
